

INTRODUCTION

Agriculture has been the prime sector of the Nepalese economy. The agricultural development policy and program issues related to natural resources, investment, subsidy/taxes, public/private services, agro-industries, marketing and pricing, and trade are of paramount importance for economic growth and people's welfare. So, Nepal Agricultural Economics Society (NAES), established in year 2005, has taken onus to pursue these issues, and suggest solutions to the stakeholders. NAES is dedicated to serve on skills and knowledge for agricultural advancement and make arrangement for exchange of views.

OBJECTIVES

The main objectives of NAES are to:

1. enhance co-operation among the agricultural economists and agricultural scientists to enhance and protect their professional rights and welfare;
2. assess the agricultural policies, development status and problems of farmers and relevant stakeholders for suggesting innovative solutions to all the concerned;
3. suggest to the public and the private agencies on emerging agricultural development issues including marketing system, quality and prices of agricultural inputs and products for the welfare of producers, entrepreneurs and consumers;
4. provide research and consultative services to institutions and individuals;
5. enable members to carry out subject-related consultations and services;
6. support and execute agricultural research on technical, social and economic aspects.

MAIN ACTIVITIES

NAES carries out the following activities:

1. Arrange offices, fund and personnel to carry out different activities of the Society;
2. Organize conferences, seminars, workshops, trainings, talk programs and interactions among the members and related professionals;
3. Carryout research and consultancy services in the field of agricultural economics and allied aspects;
4. Arrange training programs for the members on new developments in the field;
